October is Disabilities Awareness Month; displays mark 25th Anniversary of ADA

"Disabled is the only minority group you can join at any age," commented Sandy Manor, coordinator of Disability Resource and Access at NPC. That's why she has partnered with the NPC libraries to create displays during October to raise awareness of equitable access and to mark the 25th anniversary of the passage of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).

The free movie on Oct. 2 is the story of Temple Grandin, an autistic woman who overcomes her physical challenges to become an expert in animal husbandry.

Providing equal access is a social justice, civil rights issue, no longer just a medical one. Manor's office is available to help with accommodation needs. Visit www.npc.edu/DRA for information or an appointment.
